

FOUNDER'S BIRTH IS CELEBRATED

ject from the first inaugural address of Thomas Jefferson, "a splendid and a fitting maxim for such an occasion." The Senator expressed the opinion, however, that "the Republicans need at least a four years' course in the college of adversity and acquiescence." The highest duty of Democracy, in his opinion, was to convert a Republican majority into a Republican minority, and "to convert the old Republicanism into a new Republicanism." The recent election of Eugene Fox to Congress from Massachusetts was referred to by the speaker as "a matter of hope," which would yet be "lord of the ascendant."

"If I had the power," said Senator Gore, "I should have had the Congressmen of this year, and of drafting the national platform two years hence, I would condone and compromise the tariff, the tariff, the tariff, with less tariff, more trade, free ships, no trusts, no graft, no tariff."

"Less tariff," he said, "is condensed into two words, 'less tariff.' The Payne-Aldrich law, he said, 'ought to bring revenue into the treasury of the government, and to leave the revenue in the hands of the people.'"

Senator Benjamin F. Shively, of Indiana, spoke on "Jefferson's Political Philosophy." He said that Jefferson was a "believer in corruption as a means of government, who went on the floor of Congress and traded patronage for votes. The department in exchange for votes." It was this, said the Senator, that Jefferson called "the great issue of the day."

"Today," said Senator Shively, "the Republican party will appeal to Lincoln on sentiment, but it always appeals to Hamilton for its principle."

Senator Shively attacked the Republican party rule as a "confederacy of special privilege," which had turned the taxing power of government into private assets.

"The great issue of today," he said, "is that if the people of this country cannot recall their taxing power, no other reform is possible in this country. A colossal system of graft has been auctioned in the counties, in the identical elections by the Republican party."

"Like One-Hoss Shay," said Representative Charles C. Mims, of Missouri, minority leader of the House, then spoke.

After the manner of the "one-hoss shay," the Republican party is going to pieces, according to the declaration made by Representative Clark. Condemning the Republican party as "the most extravagant and reckless party in the history of this country," he called it "the party of the Payne-Aldrich-Smoot tariff bill, the worst tariff bill ever placed on the statute books of the United States."

"The tariff," he said, "is the high tariff, which does not increase prices, he asked, 'why do the tariff barons want a high tariff?' The question answers itself."

"The increase of gold," he continued, "has some influence in raising prices. It is true, but the high tariff and the trusts are the principal factors in increasing the prices of manufactured articles."

"Economy is a humble theme," he said, "affording little opportunity for finished rhetoric or for splendid eloquence, but it appeals to the average man with great force, especially in this period of high prices of living, clothing, and food."

"The people," he said, "are quite likely to take it into their heads to locate the authors of the vast extravagance which is forcing upon them, and to publish them when found, a just and patriotic performance which will give us a Democratic House of Representatives in the next Congress and both a Democratic President and House of Representatives in 1912."

A letter was read from Chairman Norman E. Mack, of the Democratic National Committee, who was unable to attend in person. The letter set forth that the writer had just completed a seven weeks' trip about the country, and that he had found everywhere "distraction, distraction, distraction, or failure to keep faith with the people by carrying out its platform pledges and the promises made to them by the President in his letter of acceptance."

Success Assured. Indianapolis, Ind., April 13.—Democrats of Indiana today celebrated the party leader's national distinction at a banquet, in the celebration of the birthday anniversary of Thomas Jefferson. John W. Kern, Democratic candidate for Vice-President in 1908, presided at the banquet.

Mr. Kern read a letter from William J. Bryan, Governor of Nebraska, and from William Sulzer, of New York, former Governor Joseph W. Folk, of Missouri.

and in this sense we are effecting a conquest of Brazil.

Her constitution is modeled after ours; she has copied from us the electoral system of government, which united local control of local affairs with national supremacy; her flag, like ours, has a star for each State, and her school system is being made to conform more and more to ours. These victories, too, cement friendship, instead of arousing enmity. Hail to Jefferson, the world's schoolmaster, whose views continue their majestic march around the earth.

"But in our own country, as well as abroad, his principles are triumphing. He taught that the art of government is the art of being honest and each new investigation proves the folly of those who refuse to learn of him."

For of monopoly.

"It was the foe of monopoly in every form, and his name is the one which can with most propriety be invoked when the trusts are attacked."

and when a contest is being waged for the application of the principles of popular government.

"I am so far away from home that I am not fully informed as to the recent events, but I have just read one Jeffersonian victory, namely, the selection of an investigating committee by the House instead of by the Speaker, and better still, each party selected its members of the committee. This establishes an important precedent, which, if followed, will make investigations real and effective."

"I notice also that we seem likely to win a victory against the meat trust. Monopoly prices have at last provoked a popular protest, and now the people are looking for a remedy. There is hope that they will accept the Democratic remedy. It is not unnatural that they should use the boycott, even if they punish themselves while they are inflicting punishment on the oppressor, but I am sure they will in the end, and legislation more satisfactory than abstention from meat and join with the Democrats in declaring a private monopoly—not the meat trust only, but every private monopoly—indefensible and intolerable."

Violent at Last.

"But there is another item of news which has just come to my attention. President Taft in his Lincoln speech at New York February 12 attributes the increase in the production of gold and the consequent enlargement of the volume of money. This unexpected endorsement of our party's proposition in 1896, when we demanded that gold be taken out of circulation, is gratifying. How valuable that admission would have been to us if it had been made during the campaign of that year, when the Republican leaders were denying that the volume of money had any influence on prices, and asserting that it did not matter whether we had much money or little, provided it was all good."

"We may now consider the quantitative theory of money established beyond dispute and proceed to the consideration of other questions. But the President and his predecessor have admitted the correctness of the Democratic position on so many questions that further argument is hardly necessary on any subject and we may now take justly the measure of the Republican party by confession."

"Please present my compliments to the Democrats assembled in memory of the Sage of Monticello. I take it for granted that your gathering will not adjourn without the adoption of a resolution urging the ratification by all the States of the income tax amendment to the Federal Constitution."

"The time is ripe for a return to Jeffersonian principles, and I trust the representatives of our party will make a record which will secure us a majority at the coming national election. With this advantage gained, the Democrats will have an opportunity to outline a program and, with a program in harmony with Jeffersonian ideas, the Democracy will enter the presidential campaign with promise of success."

Foreman—Myers. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Lynchburg, Va., April 13.—Mr. and Mrs. David William Myers, of this city, have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Margaret Lee Myers, to William Russell Foreman, of Lynchburg, on Saturday morning, April 23, at 5 o'clock, at Court Street Methodist Church.

ORGANIZATION AGAINST STATE PROHIBITION LAW

Convicted Dealer Makes Sensational Affidavit as to Conditions Existing in Wilmington.

Wilmington, N. C., April 13.—Following a full and open confession on the sworn affidavit of this morning, a dealer in liquor, convicted in the Superior Court and sentenced to six months on the roads for liquor selling, to the effect that there are more than 100 holders of United States licenses for liquor selling in Wilmington; that there is an organization among the offenders against the prohibition law here known as "Association Number Six," with regular officers; that he has paid $5 each month into the coffers of the association to be spent for political purposes and otherwise, stating that the members would secure protection against possible prosecution; and that the association has a regularly employed attorney here to transact its business affairs. L. Clayton Grant, attorney for the convicted Winner, will appear before Judge C. M. Cooke, of the Superior Court, here and ask that, in consideration of the full and open confession, leniency be extended to the defendant.

A good story features the confession, as told to-day by Winner. Several days ago he intimated to Mr. Grant, his attorney, that he would reveal a startling array of facts as to liquor conditions here. Mr. Grant advised Winner to make a full and open confession if he knew of anything he might expose. This morning Winner made affidavit to grave facts. His statement was heard not only by Mr. Grant, but also by two prominent citizens. Winner asked the attorney and the citizens that he could reveal even more startling and sensational facts about local conditions than are set forth in his affidavit, if he were placed under oath in open court.

"To help the life of your shoes, put them on trees every night."

Here are the trees at one dollar.

Like a skillful massage they keep out the wrinkles.

A Richmond minister told this writer yesterday that he had just put on a pair of low-quarter shoes that he bought at the Berry Store three springs ago, and that he had worn them practically every day since throughout the low-shoe season!

And that they were good for several months' wear yet.

They were a pair of the now famous Berry Shoes at $3.50.

That's the line of talk we hear from the wearers of the Berry Shoe.

We know they have no equal at the price and we know why.
